Alumni Association promises support for 5 SHS students to the annual Teen Institute Conference

The September 29, 2018 board meeting of the Sidney Central School Alumni Association was attended by several students of Sidney High: Collin Searles, President of the Student Council and Justin Santiago, Vice President of the Student Council as well as the SCSAA Leadership Fellows Sarah Bessett and Glenn Rogers. At the suggestion of director Kerri Green, Collin and Glenn spoke about how the SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) leaders of Sidney High have participated in and benefitted from the annual four day New York State Teen Institute Conference each fall.

Teen Institute is a youth leadership program that begins with a four day training program to develop leadership skills and to engage in Strategic Prevention workshops and team building activities. Story continued on pg. 3.

Teen Institute Conference ... con’t from pg. 1

The teams work to plan and implement peer-focused prevention and community service projects upon returning to their home schools and are supported year round by The Heart of New York Teen Institute.

Upon hearing the power and the impact of this program on Sidney students in the prevention of drug addiction, drunk driving and self-destructive decisions and actions, and learning that the school budget this year allowed for only a dozen attendees, the SCSAA board voted to support the Teen Institute with grants for five additional students to attend the conference in Syracuse.

Please note correction in the August 2018 “We Remember” article: Brian Mathewson, Class of ’78, is not deceased. Brian’s father, also named Brian Mathewson, Class of ’59, passed away. We extend our sincere condolences to his wife, Carol, and their children Brian Jr., Christopher, Jamie and Sara, and their 5 grandchildren.
All Enjoy 16th Sidney Alumni Sports HOF Induction

By Greg Davie

More than 150 attended the 16th annual Sidney Alumni Sports Hall of Fame induction dinner and ceremony at the Elks Lodge on Sat., Sept. 29. Judging by the many comments and standing ovations, all shared great memories and more. The Elks put on another terrific buffet dinner and the Sports HOF committee provided more than just a ceremony for attendees’ enjoyment. There were two auctions – the usual memorabilia auction and a new “Shop Local, Keep it Local” auction, featuring products and services donated by area businesses. In the traditional auction, the culminating item was a matted and framed print of the 1997-1998 boys’ basketball team that spurred a spirited bidding war. Winner Mark Simmons had all members of the team sign the valued print. Another well-received addition to the evening was on-demand custom Sports Hall of Fame T-shirt production by Jerri and Jim Shupperd. Hall of Fame Chairman Greg Davie again emceed the event, reminding audience members to “embrace the moments and the memories.”

The night belonged to the Class of 2018 and Legacy Team, with informative and heartfelt speeches given by presenters and inductees. Larry Halbert paid tribute to Hall of Fame wrestling coach Tom Robertson before introducing Mark Payne, whose scholastic and collegiate accomplishments made him one of Sidney’s all-time best. Payne enjoyed telling several stories of those days from his unique perspective. After Payne’s acceptance speech, he introduced his sister Peggy Payne Phelps, the next inductee and a pre-Title IX athlete and, later, a coach. She dedicated her induction to “all those girls with me and before me who didn’t get the chance to play sports more in school.”

Hall of Fame coach Roxy Birdsell introduced Helen Harris and her many athletic and professional achievements. Harris had the audience’s full attention as she recounted an upbringing unlike that of most of her peers. Her message of “you get what you earn” was powerful and the fact that she won all three major awards as a Sidney senior in 1987 is a testament to that mindset.

Loraine Flyzik, former Sidney tennis and girls’ basketball coach introduced Amanda Haney Blette, a three-time state high jump champion and a dual-sport (track and basketball) standout in college. Flyzik said Haney Blette showed “character through and through, even when no one was watching.” Haney Blette’s own speech discussing coaches, teammates and family members was poignant.

The final inductee, the youngest on the Hall of Fame roster was Katelyn Guerriere. Guerriere’s Sidney volleyball coach spoke of how Katelyn, renowned as a six-time state track champion in individual events, was a valuable asset in team sports, including her 2006 sectional champion volleyball team.

Throughout the weekend, all members of the New York State Class C Champion Warriors boys’ basketball team attended or were represented by family. Sidney’s 26-2 season, as well as the years leading up to it, were recounted by team spokesman Jason Dorsey, who created many laughs and emotional moments. Coach Mike Brazee followed Dorsey and he, too, shared behind-the-scenes tales of what that season meant and still means. The Sidney Alumni Sports Hall of Fame thanks the sponsors, donors and all those associated with making the night a tremendous success.

All funds raised during the event benefit creation of a digital touchscreen display at the Sidney High School. This system will allow students, alumni and the community to learn more about the Alumni Association while searching for alumni career help and awards and accomplishments such as the Wall of Fame and Sports Hall of Fame.

Induction Weekend began Friday night with a halftime ceremony at the football game followed by the annual social at the VFW, sponsored by ACCO Brands.

SIDNEY – Community groups came together when the Sidney Alumni Association and Sidney United Way presented the Sidney Center Improvement Group with $10,000 last Saturday [Sept. 29]. The money, some generated through SAA fundraising efforts and some grant-funded, will benefit Phase I and II of much-needed improvements at the Sidney Center Playground, SCIG president Michael Sellitti said.

The park has been largely inoperable and inaccessible since suffering storm- and flood-related damage. “This will definitely help us move forward with restoring what’s there and installing new features,” Sellitti said, noting that new features will include stone benches, playground equipment, a community pavilion and walking trails. The group also plans to earmark funding for repairs to existing swings and a basketball court, he said. Such a significant monetary contribution, Sellitti said, helps SCIG meet its mission. “Our focus is on providing free community events, beautification and improvement and water quality,” Sellitti said. “We’ve been working toward this for 10 years and the park is something the community expressed wanting to see improved. We’re fortunate to have really good partnerships with the Sidney Alumni Association and United Way.”

Sellitti said he expects work on Phase I and II to take place primarily through 2019, with Phase III, which includes construction and installation of a footbridge, slated for 2020. SCIG, Sellitti noted, includes roughly 20 members. Sidney Alumni Association President Doug Sheldon said, beyond prompting nostalgia among many of the group’s roughly 1,000 members, the playground project reinforces SCSAA’s focus. “Part of our mission is service to the alumni, school and community,” he said. “So we have an abiding interest in things that are good for the community.”

“The Sidney Center Improvement Group came to us and asked if there was any way we could help, so we reached out to the alumni,” Sheldon added, noting that the process began in April. After mailers and the Association’s “Reflections” newsletter reached an estimated 3,000, Sheldon said, the response was hearty and immediate. “Essentially in a three-month period, the alumni caught the message and helped out,” he said. “There’s a strong attachment to this area.” The association offered a matching $2,500 to funds raised by the alumni, Sheldon said, for the SCSAA’s total $5,000 contribution. However, so strong was members’ response, he added, that the group has a remaining $7,500, which it plans to apply to Phase III. Like Sheldon, Sidney United Way President Lorrie Roach said, the SCIG’s playground revival was an easy cause to back. “We’re the Sidney United Way, but we support three communities—Masonville, Sidney and Sidney Center,” she said. “And one of our focus areas is youth, so what better way to do that than provide for a facility that was destroyed and is now coming back to life? It’s a delightful result.” For more info. on the Sidney Alumni Association or to donate to the project, visit sidneyalumni.org. To learn more about SCIG, find “Sidney Center Improvement Group, Inc.” on Facebook, or visit scigny.org.

Wall of Fame Showcase-- Dennis Porter, co- chairman of the SCSAA Wall of Fame Committee, stands in front of 64 inductee plaques hanging in the hallway of the Sidney High School. If you know of someone you would like to nominate for this award, please contact any member of the Wall of Fame Committee listed on sidneyalumni.org.
